Ljubljana Tales (Collection Of Central European Contemporary Writing)

Synopsis

Ljubljana Tales is the fifth anthology cultivated from the fruitful vines of New Europe. As with the earlier volumes in the series, we have selected and encouraged contemporary writers to provide an insight into the lands of Slovenia, centred on Ljubljana. Local and international authors, in short stories and verse, combine to give this selection a shared sense of place, whilst at the same time offering a delicate variety of flavours - many of them with hints of the satiric, even the surreal. Through the pages of this slim volume, we hope that the serious travelling reader will experience some of the subtleties that abound in Ljubljana, the Beloved City of Bridges, Dragons, and Cafes. At this crossroads of New Europe, the imagination can aspire to fulfil its true function: we should perhaps expect no less from a city that has inspired past visitors to mistake it for somewhere else: Joyce for Trieste, Jason for Vienna, and George W. Bush for Bratislava. We suspect there is something quirky in the air.
